

Dr. László Rovó (1965) graduated at the Medical Faculty of University of Szeged in 1989. He joined to the Department of Otolaryngology, Head and Neck Surgery. He has been working there for 26 years. He has been the chair and professor of the department since 2012. He is a specialist of otorhinolaryngology (1993) and audiology (2001) and phoniatriy (2006). His research interest focused on the surgical treatment of upper airway stenosis, head and neck oncology, reconstructive middle ear surgery, cochlear implantation and other implantable hearing aids. He wrote his PhD thesis titled 'Surgical-anatomical aspect of the cricoarytenoid joint' in 2004. He published 77 scientific papers in prestigious journals. He is member of the European Laryngological Society, Chevalier Jackson Association. He is the president of Hungarian Society of Oto-Rhino-Laryngology, Head & Neck Surgery.